It is thought that the long expected sensational climax of the Mint investigation will come this week, or then again it may not come till next week.

A saloon was robbed at Santa Rosa, Cal., Sunday night, by two men. They held up two men who were playing cards and went through the till securing over $100.

The Mint shortage was discovered by Hirsch Harris who at once informed Superintendent Adams, who notified the Washington authorities at once. This was over six weeks ago.

THREE GENERATIONS MEET.

TWO WEDDINGS SPANNING HALF A CENTURY.

Last Saturday two weddings took place at Fredericksburg, Alpine Co., Cal., which were notable in more ways than one. Charles H. Springmeyer, of Gardnerville, son of Herman Springmeyer, one of the solid ranchers of Carson Valley, wedded Theresa Neddenrei, the belle of Fredericksburg, in Alpine county, Cal., and at the same time and place, Mr. and Mrs. Neddenrei, grand parents of the bride, celebrated their golden wedding.

The double wedding invitations, printed at the APPEAL office, flooded the Valley three weeks ago and the announcement of the aged couple was printed in gold letters. The young people, however, had to be content with ordinary black on the page devoted to their announcement. Everybody of note in the two counties of Douglas and Alpine were invited and special arrangements had been made by all concerned to celebrate the occasion in true German style. The Germans consider a marriage a big event and don't slide off quietly to a Justice of the Peace when they wed. They spread the banquet board, set up the wine and turn loose the dance.

Those who attended this particular wedding say that nothing like it was ever known in Alpine or Douglas counties. Over two hundred and fifty people were present at the wedding and sat down at the banquet which followed the tying of the nuptial knot. Rev. George Davis of this city, united the young couple and when he kissed the lovely, young creature that Chatley Springmeyer had chosen as his wife, he seemed so well satisfied with the performance that everybody in the place followed suit without any further questioning.

Rev. Becker the Lutheran clergyman reunited the old couple and he kissed the bride also and so did everybody else.

The APPEAL's special correspondent was especially enjoined to count the grand children, but he seems to have been unable to herd them all into one corral. Some people from the Valley say there must have been nearly a hundred of 'em.

The choice parts of several steers were largely in evidence; roast pork by the hundred weight, chickens, ducks, and turkeys until you couldn't count 'em; cakes as big as a new moon and three feet high, beer in kegs, wieners, wurst, claret by the case, head cheese, port in casks, German sausage, champagne by the basket, mallards, jacksnipe, more beer, stuffed goose, more claret, calves head, more champagne, and side dishes till you couldn't rest.

Then came the dance. The dance was on a hill across from the house. Seventy-five couple could dance at once. After a few hours of dancing they would go back to the banquet board and give other people a chance. It was a continuous round of dancing all Sunday afternoon and until daylight Monday morning. The dancing and the banqueting was going on all the while with three relays of cooks and fiddlers.

The banquet was so long that with a preacher at each end of the table saying grace, they didn't interrupt each other.

The bride was kissed over 200 times, and her grandmother nearly as much. Some of the young fellows from Alpine got confused and kissed girls that looked like the bride. But these mistakes often occur at a big wedding and were overlooked by the clergy, who retired early.

The APPEAL acknowledges a small wagon load of cake and wine.

The Races.

A large crowd was in attendance at the races yesterday. The grand stand was packed. After considerable delay the first race commenced about 2:30. One-eight mile, Warren Nesmith's horse Dandy first, and Mathers Lottie B. second. Time 13. Three eighths mile, Annie Rooney first, Millie M. second. Time 42. One fourth mile, Bessie S. (Savage) first, Diamond, (Graham) second. Time 25. One fourth mile, Tillie C. first, Bessie S. second. Time 25.

A young lady of admitted beautiful proportions has been posing at a New York theatre covered only with vaseline and gold bronze powder. She has been arrested. That's right. She ought to pay some deference to the silver movement and put some silver bronze on occasionally.

Ed. Colnon of the Stockton Mail was sworn in as Harbor Commissioner of California yesterday.

The Mint Mystery.

Inspector Mason still continues his searching investigation of the Mint shortage, and as he pursues his duties in that direction never allows the slightest comment or opinion to escape him. He has it said finished his labors in the Melter and Refiners department, and gone into the Assaying department. It is claimed by the friends of the Melting room that this means that there is nothing wrong with the Melter and Refiner, and that the trouble lies further back. Every move he makes is anxiously watched and significance attached to everything he does. What has taken place no one knows, not even the Mint officials, but the Melter and Refiners department and their bondsmen look smiling, which is taken by the knowing ones, to mean that their skirts are clear. The Sunday Chronicle and Call treated the matter at considerable length, and the Chronicle especially charged that the Bullion Bank of this city had been accessory to the shortage.

The Miners Association of San Francisco have offered to prove this, and claim that they are ready to lay the evidence before the Government officials. The articles created a great sensation in this city coming at this time, but most of the charges were made three years ago in the Hale & Norcross suit, and the final settlement is still pending in the Supreme Court of California. Meanwhile rumors of detectives being in the city come from every direction.

It is claimed that five are in this city, two in Virginia and two in Reno, but how anybody knows this is what nobody can explain. Every stranger is regarded as a detective of some sort and it is claimed that even the wives of suspected men are shadowed.

Accident on the C. P.

On Sunday evening the express train from San Francisco, due in Reno at 8:15, ran into a boulder about fifteen miles west of Reno. The engine was demolished and the mail car and tender wrecked. The loss will foot up nearly $40,000. It is believed by the officials of the company, that the obstruction was purposely placed on the track.

The case of J. C. Titus vs. Southern Pacific Railroad Co., to recover damages alleged to have been sustained by the plaintiff near the town of Truckee about three years ago, has been set for trial on Tuesday, April 2nd, by jury, in the U. S. Court in this city.

An explanation from Mr. Mills is in order.
